Public Utility Commission Urges Texans to Prepare for 2023 Hurricane Season

2023 Atlantic Hurricane Season Begins June 1

Austin, Texas - The Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) is urging Texans to stay alert and informed throughout the 2023 Atlantic Hurricane Season, which begins today and runs through Nov. 30.

“Hurricanes, like any severe weather event, can lead to localized power outages and threaten personal safety and property,” said PUC Chairman Peter Lake. “It is extremely important that people in every area of our state understand their hurricane risk, listen to warnings from emergency officials, and use PUC and other agency resources to stay updated.”

In the event of a hurricane, electricity consumers in Texas can use the PUC’s storm resources page on the agency website to monitor local power outage maps, find contact information to report local outages and other useful safety tips.

To prepare for hurricane season, the PUC works with electricity providers across the state to ensure they have appropriate hurricane preparedness measures in place and can quickly respond to outages. The PUC also helps providers in hurricane prone areas supply customers with preparedness information as an insert in their billing statements.

As part of the Texas Emergency Management Council, the PUC works closely with the Governor’s Office, the Texas Division of Emergency Management and more than 30 other state agencies and higher education systems to prepare for, respond to and recover from severe weather. During a severe weather emergency, the Texas State Operations Command Center serves as a central hub for coordination and communication with the public.

The Texas Division of Emergency Management encourages residents in hurricane prone areas to monitor local weather forecasts, make an emergency plan, review hurricane evacuation routes, build a kit containing emergency supplies, and consider reviewing flood risk and insurance coverage.

Texans should visit the Texas Hurricane Center at gov.texas.gov/hurricane and ready.gov/hurricanes for more preparedness resources and safety tips.
